reason that you should hear from him, personally, as he had seen the pictures in Paris.
He returned to us on the 18th inst, and, as you may imagine, has been much occupied; at the same time he has not been well, and I have now the pleasure to hand you our a/ct in your favour on DeLannay's bill for New York for five hundred dollars, which have the gratifying to apply in payment for the portrait of Mr.
DeLannay's Exchange. I believe is at par between Paris & New York. Should this not be the case you will advise me.

My brother strikes the likeness of which he saw perfect, and tells me has the advantage over Eckhardt; it represents Calhoun some ten years ago, and as he is now healthy. The painting he thinks is not by any means as good as Eckhardt's picture.
I have to thank you for your letter of introduction to Bernard & Jay at Boston in favour of myself. They have been promptly and most kindly responded to, and his residence there is in every respect more satisfactory and comfortable in consequence of the relations which then
